The memorialist and her sister Putta Parvatamma are the two surviving pensioners members of the Chikballapur Pallegar Family, drawing each a monthly Pallegar pension of Rs 152-8-7.

2- The memorialist had made the same request once before this and for reasons contained in S+A 125-1908 - Secs 2a & 3, it was rejected.

3- There is nothing new now alleged that has not been said before. Under Govt's orders the pet's pension is a life grant & shd cease to the State after her demise. Govt cannot also pass orders regulating the devolution of a pension during the lifetime of a present holder. The late Dewan Expressed it as his opinion that it would be too much to continue pensions in whole or in part into the families into which daughters of pensioners may be married. There is no good ground to reopen the case & the pet's Counsel did not deny already issued are final

To M. Visveswaraya Esquire
C. I. E
Dewan, of Mysore

May it please your Honour

1. That the memorialist is the elder of the two danghters of Ramasamy Yavaru, late Pallegar of Chikballapur.

2. That the above said Ramasamy Yavaru was enjoying State Pension. After his death, his pension was distributed among five persons, namely his mother, his two wives and his two daughters. His two daughters, the memorialist and her sister are now enjoying the whole of the pension.

3. The memorialist had a son by name Ananta Ramasamy, who died about five years ago, leaving two sons by name Venkata Narainsamy and Chennanappaya. The latter is a minor. They are entitled to her properties, as (they are) her nearest heirs.

4. The Memorialist is very old and weak and is ailing now. There is no probability of her living any longer.

The memorialist most humbly begs that your Honour may be graciously pleased to order that the pension which she now enjoys be continued to her grand sons after her death.

For this act of kindness she will ever pray the Almighty for your Honour's long life and prosperity.

The memorialist most humbly begs to remain,

Your Honour's most obedient and loyal subject,

(Signed) VENKATALAKSHMAMMANNI.
